He was alone but others were on the lake, and his cries for help attracted the attention of Percy Fogg, Russell Bethell and Harold Thomas, who were skating some distance from the place where he broke in.

They immediately started for the other shore and on reaching the place where the cries came from, they merely saw the skate tracks, a hole in the ice, and bubbles coming to the surface but nothing else was seen.

Harold Thomas came to the village for the coroner, A. P. Bassett, who with Fred Cummings, Ed. Cummings and Harrington Flint went to the scene with grapples. A boat was used as the ice would not hold and after about two hours the body was recovered.

Gerald was the son of Walter S. Thompson, who was drowned at Kezar Pond in June, 1905 and the same grapples that were used to take him from the water were the ones made to remove his father from Kezar Pond, a little over seven years ago.

Price Webber is well known to the theater going public of Norway, having been here for 35 years with only two years' absence during that time, and his coming always brings large audiences, well knowing that they get their money's worth when they hear Price Webber and his company.

Florence Langton, (Edwina Grey) the female detective, was the leading character and became a detective through her love for her sister, Una Langton, and to "satisfy her natural curiosity." Miss Grey was particularly adapted for the part, and received much applause.

Una Langton, (Hattie Lewis) became engaged to marry Barry Malison, (Kenneth Flemming) an adventurer who was already married to Stella Ritzdorf, (Elsie Bishop) who, to secure Una Langton and her dowery, throws his wife into the lake but he is finally unearthed and brought to justice through the untiring efforts of Florence Langton and Mr. Roderick Tracy, (Harry F. Brown) a London policeman in disguise.

H. Price Webber took the part of Ludovic Stuyvesant, a German sharper, and as may be suspected was somewhat of a villian. His jokes were exceedingly popular and received hearty applause.

The parts were all finely rendered and the two special numbers added much to the pleasure of the evening's entertainment.

I am glad to confirm my previous public endorsement of them. I suffered from pains in the small of my back and if I stooped for any length of time, it was hard for me to straighten. Children's Column.

Bethel, Me., Dec. 15, 1912.

Dear Editor: I am a little girl ten years old. I hope girls and boys will write to the paper. Here is my Sunday verse:

"Of our Savior men did say,
As He blessed them every day;
Jesus hath done all things well,
Of His goodness we will tell."

I am glad winter is here. I go out to slide. It is fun to slide and mamma K. comes out to slide with me. I have some doves and hens and chickens and a cat and dolls.

BLANCHE E. KIMBALL.

These lines are written by Pat and Polly, Twin brother and sister, fat and jolly. Sometimes we're bad—sometimes we're good—We mostly try to do as we should, The Advertiser we weekly read, To its warning precepts we both take heed. The "Scratch Thoughts" rather take our eye, But the Children's Column we can't pass by; For tho' we're small and extremely young We know our place—yet are fond of fun.

Now that our introductions are over We want to talk to Ransom S. Grover. He wrote us a letter from Otisfield Gore, We truly hope he writes us more. He owns a dog—he owns a cat! Now tell me, what think you of that? He has a cow, a bird—some hens— Does he keep them all in pens?

Blanche Ellen Kimball of Bethel, Maine, We've looked for your letteas some time, in vain;
Are you busy, or too ill, Just a bit of this space to fill?

A word we have for Ida May Brown, Who lives afar in Andover town; The answer to her riddle, we see, And wish to state that it is BEE. There are other letters we ought to mention, For they have a claim on our attention, But we have neither space nor time As about ourselves we want to rhyme; To tell you what wise young folks we are, For we're guided by a lucky star.

So if you've a question you wish to ask, It will be a pleasure and not a task To answer the same in prose or verse; So all your troubles please rehearse. Present your riddles to Polly and Pat— The twins are always good at that. And now little people, we say Adieu, We'll come again—if we hear from you.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. DRIVES OFF A TERROR

The chief executioner of death in the winter and spring months is pneumonia. Its advance agents are colds and grip. In any attack by one of these maladies no time should be lost in taking the best medicine obtainable to drive it off. Countless thousands have found this to be Dr. King's New Discovery. "My husband believes it has kept him from having pneumonia three or four times," writes Mrs. George W. Place, Rawsonville, Vt., "and for coughs, colds and croup we have never found its equal." Guaranteed for all bronchial affections. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at The Noyes Drug Store. 50 52

The propensity of children—and, we suspect, of some who are not children, to deface our public and private property with inscriptons should be curbed. Oftentimes these inscriptions are put upon the property with materials that are indelible. Even when they may be read without causing a blush of shame, the pencilings do not add to the attractiveness of the property and stringent means should be taken to enforce the law which penalizes such defacement.

Mount Goose-Eye and Vicinity.

Botanical Explorer Suggests Path for Trampers Reaching Mountain Region of Northern Oxford County.

Arthur Stanley Pease, now of Urbana, Ill., in his botanical research has had occasion to go to the mountains lying within the bend from south to east that the Androscoggin river makes at Gorham. There are in here some mountains, Bald Cap, Ingalls and Goose-Eye, in the midst of a country very different from the Presidential range and its outliers to the east and south. There is here a country of fine mountains and box canyons, gorges with practically vertical sides to which the right of way of the Success log railway is the usual means of access. The Gorham sheet of the United States Geological Survey has for its northern line the parallel of latitude, North 44 degrees and 30 minutes, which is about two miles north of Berlin and for its easterly border extends into Maine about a mile. In this corner and running back about 10 miles from Gorham is the Hayes Bald Cap-Ingalls range, mountains that within New Hampshire run up to from 3000 to 3500 feet altitude, with some equally ambitious brethren across the line in Maine.

Mr. Pease suggests to the Appalachian Mountain Club the opening of a path along this range. "In the summers that I have spent at Randolph," he writes, "I have a number of times, and with some difficulty, made trips into this group of mountains and have invariably found them of very great interest, both for the bold cliffs and interesting valleys and for the remarkably fine views which they afford of the Presidential, Carter-Moriab, and Pilot ranges. I have ascended Hayes (2600 feet), Bald Cap Peak (2780 feet) and a top to the west of this called, I think, Red Mountain (about 2650 feet). Besides this I have climbed Ingalls (3570 feet), the lower slopes of Carlo and—off the map—Goose-Eye, the finest of the range and still to the northeast, Speckled Mountain."

Attention is called to the fact that Ingalls is called Success by the Shelburne visitors.

Route starts at Berlin Mills—Mr. Pease has also crossed the geological survey map via Mill Brook—not named on the survey map and called Austin's Mill Brook on the National Company map—making a north course and coming out on the Success road, and thence westerly to Berlin. He notes that it is not known to every one that this road which is the right of way of the old lumber road, is passable for automobiles from Berlin Mills to Success Pond, a distance of 14 miles. This furnishes an excellent means of reaching Goose-Eye, the summit being in places not more than a couple of miles from the road.

The suggestion is made by this investigator that a trail might be cut from the summit of Mount Hayes—to which a path already climbs—descending perhaps 500 feet in a northerly direction to a little pond at the head of Mine brook, then north of east ascending about 1100 feet to Bald Cap Dome, or perhaps touching Dream Lake with spurs to the summits of the Dome and the peak between which it lies. The lake is about 2560 feet and to the dome it would be about a mile with 600 feet of climb, while to the Peak the distance would be much less, with a sharp 200 feet of rise to make.

The trunk path might then strike for Gentian Pond, the source of Mill brook a distance of 10 miles without much difference in elevation, and from this as a center, trails could branch to the summit of Success—the real one—(2985 feet) and to Ingalls. The latter is a bare stretch of rock and bog similar to the top of Clinton, the view being comparable to that of Goose Eye.

From Ingalls the southeast ridge, a natural pathway conducts the tramper to a network of lumber roads running down to Shelburne by the valley of the Ingalls River, and mostly in the township of Riley, Me.

Continuing the same general direction of the trunk path, but bearing somewhat more to the east by dropping into a notch of perhaps 500 feet, the route may be kept to Carlo the unnamed summit of 3550 feet in the edge of the Gorham sheet.

The notch between Carlo and Goose-Eye is not a difficult one, and from it a ridge runs northeast to the plateau just below the last named peak from which a five minute scramble, gains the highest point.

Northeastward from Goose-Eye—Beyond Goose-Eye a long ridge of high elevation bears away northeast toward Matoosue Notch, the most decided break in the whole chain of mountains, a very interesting place as seen from a distance. Mr. Pease has not himself been in this notch nor has he found anyone else familiar with it. To the north of the notch begin the foothills of Speckled Mountain, familiar to those who know the Grafton Notch.

"The ideal thing," writes Mr. Pease "would be to carry the trail through from where it now ends on Hayes to the Grafton Notch, and I should hope that eventually this might be done, but a preliminary section, running as far as summit of Goose-Eye, with spurs as indicated to various summits near the line, and another one from Goose-Eye to the Success road at a point about nine miles from Berlin, would open a new section of country to mountain lovers, who get into the Gorham district."

Alternate Route Leads to Umbagog—There are apparently further possibilities for long distance walkers, for from the point where the spur from Goose-Eye would meet the Success road it is about five miles to Success Pond, and from this to Lakeside, on Lake Umbagog, there is said to be a good road nine miles in lenght.

This would be an added attraction, for here is the entrance to the Rangeley region, with its pleasant alternation of beautiful lake and lofty mountain. A few well placed signs and some publicity would put at the disposal of trampers a considerable number of logging and toteroads in Dixville, Diamond Pond, to the west; Hellgate and Brown Farm on the east, and no one can tell just what treasures to the north.

All this would make available to trampers who are walking for the love of it and the knowledge that it brings to them of nature great stretches of mountain range and forest lands, now entered only by the sportsman and at the cost that hunting and fishing necessarily entail. It seems as if Mr. Pease has hit upon the method of making all this country available and it is a project in which trampers ought to lend not only the pecuniary aid that they can afford but pages from their books of experience if the experience has been within this splendid country.—[Boston Transcript.

Indigestion

Causes Dizziness, Nervousness, Sick Headache, Sleeplessness.

MI-O-NA Stomach Tablets Banish all Misery, Gas and Sourness.

You know that most of the ailments named above come from an out of order stomach; of course you do.

If your food doesn't digest, but lays heavily on your stomach, it has started to ferment.

When it ferments it sets loose in the stomach poisonous gases which irritate the great nerve that leads directly to the brain from the stomach.

That irritation causes heartburn, dizziness, nightsweats, nervousness.

MI-O-NA will end all stomach misery, or money back. A large box costs only 50 cents and is sold by Noyes Drug Store and druggist everywhere. adv. 51 52

A Valuable Suggestion

IMPORTANT TO EVERYONE

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

During the winter months especially, when we live an indoor life, the kidneys should receive some assistance when needed, as we take less exercise, drink less water and often eat more rich heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than Nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, inability to hold urine, smarting or burning, brick-dust or sediment, sallow complexion, rheumatism, may be weak or irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble.

An herbal medicine containing no minerals or opiates has the most healing influence. An ideal herbal compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by mail, absolutely free. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention the Norway Weekly Oxford County Advertiser. 49 52

A Christmas Card.

To E. M. D.

Just a simple card that came one day,
Bearing a message bright and gay;
An old time carol of Christmas cheer,
Received with smiles that were mingled with tears,
The written side revealed as we read,
A loving heart and a level head.
In modest words success is told,
Between the lines reads the story of old,
That the golden card of friendship rings true,
And the message goes back, "good cheer to you."
As from mind to mind the message we send,
We have read you aright, we are sure dear friend.

There will be a rehearsal, Monday evening, Dec. 30th in the vestry by T. A Roberts, W. R. C.

Rev. J. M. Frost, District Superintendent, preached a very able Christmas sermon in the M. E. church. There was special music for the occasion. Mr. Frost enjoyed the choir's music much.

Any farmer living near a railroad track would do well to carry insurance on his stock, as he never can tell on what day a gate may be left open and valuable stock be killed by a passing train. We read of a farmer the other day who lost four fine colts at one time in such a manner. While the railroad can usually be made to pay damages, they do not always cover the loss.

It is a pretty sensible thing to steer shy of the fellow who is dead anxious to sell you something that is going to fetch you health or wealth by a short cut and with the investment of a relatively small amount of money. In nine cases out of ten he does not belong to the benefactor class at all, but is a plain grafter and eager to get his hands on your hard earned money.

At the national corn show held the latter part of January at Columbus, O., the first prize of $1,000 for the best ten ears of corn exhibited was awarded to Roy Clore, a lad nineteen years old, of Franklin, Ind. It will be remembered that his father, L. B. Clore, won the championship prize in 1907 and 1908 and was barred from competing, but it is a fair assumption that the boy had some of the old gentleman's seed corn as well as the benefit of his many years of experience.

now, well past the meridian of life, his many friends rejoice with him that he has won a worthy bride and wish him many years of happy married life.

BY BOOSTERS, KICKERS AND OTHERS

You are Invited to Contribute, No Questions Asked or Responsibility Assumed and No Pay Except by Court Order.

Why will women suffer with corns? Hobble about with the sore places padded in anti septic cotton? Every step indicating pain. They are not shod right. Put on "ground-grippers" and wear them and your troubles are over. The remedy is simple. Try it.

Please allow me to "jine" the Boosters, Kickers and Things, for I have much to say,—in few words, however.

Do you know this column is the very best feature of your most excellent paper, not-with-standing the "wail" in a recent issue. Keep on hammering! If the town can't stand to have the truth spoken "right out loud," it must be sadly in need of repairs.

"Good sewerage?" Then I hope I may never live where the sewerage is not good. Your correspondent evidently needs to take a course in some up-to-date Correspondence School for the cure of catarrh.

Kind of nice in "the people who have permitted you to prosper all these years." I wonder if the've ever knowingly given you anything except for value received. There is lots more I could say, but you would not print it, I fear.

Say, speaking of that diamond story, what was our efficient Selectman Holmes doing with that interesting little paper "To the Mayor. Beware of swindlers." Had he informed the jewelers or done anything to make it public? Seems to me it ought to have been put on exhibition in some conspicuous place, like the post office for instance. Rather late in the day to make it public after someone was "stung."

What's the matter with making that "Curfew Law" apply to some of the "grown-ups" of our fair village, I think it would fill a long felt want.

Good Streets and Sidewalks Wanted.

It is easy to condemn one for fault-finding. It is easy to find fault with that which can't be helped, weather for instance. But is it fault-finding if one does not like to wade in mud on the sidewalks, say from between Whitman and Cottage street, whenever it rains or thaws?

Is it fault-finding if one does not like to turn their ankles on such sidewalks as that between I. W. Waite's store and the post office?

Anyone needs rubbers as much on our streets as they would in a country district. The above pieces of sidewalks are travelled more than any part of the village, and are about the limit. Were it not for the good spots that some one person has had the enterprise to fix privately, the streets would be as good walking as the sidewalks.

If Norway were unable to have things right it would be foolish to complain. But this is not true. Bridgton has miles of perfect walks. The little village of Bolster's Mills is well provided for, where there is not one travels to a hundred here.

If some loyal Norwegian thinks this is knocking the town, will said man begin down to Isaac Abbott's and walk to the Geo. Cole home, some muddy day, keep his eyes open, notice the varied patch work,—soft brick, hard brick, field rocks, granite blocks, clay, mud and coal ashes,—a truly beautiful collection. Try it and see if you are not proud of our otherwise beautiful streets, that is, above the ground.

As a remedy for this condition, have some uniform method, assess abuttors, have every rod of walks laid in the future alike according to specifications, and have whatever is done in the future, permanent and worthy the name sidewalk.

The closing of the highway to autos around Bear Pond has been a damage to our town. No doubt of it said a prominent Waterford citizen. It would have been better for the town to have expended a thousand dollars and put into a safe condition at the start. We didn't do it. We made the mistake of closing it and have fought strenuously to keep out the auto and have punished many violators and have got the auto-riding people down on us and they are swearing mad with us and will avoid the town whenever possible. It was a mistake. We've now got to fix the road and overcome our bad reputation and the ill feeling engendered.

Cut the bushes, trim up around the Pond the same as you have on the Lake road and invite everyone to use it. It will make a beautiful drive.

We have a report of H. D. Evans, director of the Maine Laboratory of Hygiene as to the analysis of water. Samples of water taken in October, 1912.

Bethel Water Co., color, 25; odor when hot, vegetable; chlorine, .07; oxygen consumed, 0.40; hardness, 1.0; alkalinity, 0.30; iron, .008; bacteria per c. c., 70.

Hebron Water Co., color 1.1; odor when hot, slight; chlorine, .13; oxygen consumed, .19; hardness, 1.3; alkalinity, 0.50; iron, .037; bacteria per cent. c. c., 30.

South Paris Water Co., color, 1.7; oder when hot vegetable; chlorine, .18; Oxygen consumed, 0.32; hardness 1.9; alkalinity, 1.00; iron, .017; bacteria per c. c., 12.

Norway Water Co., color, 11; odor when hot, grassy; chlorine, 1 3; oxygen consumed, 0 36; hardness, 1 9; alkalinity 0.80; iron, .019; Bacteria, per cent. 60.

All these waters are unpoluted and good drinking water says Director Evans.

It's fortunate he tells us that as the layman would hardly know what conclusion to draw from the above figures and might refrain from drinking water. The water for October from these four Oxford County Water Co's. is all right so drink it and be not afraid.

The Ginn House on Lynn street bears a sign, "Single meal 25 cents; meals at all hours."

This inanimate sign is unconsciously telling a lie; the house has been closed for several years; its only inhabitants are rats and mice, maybe the stable was occupied part of last summer.

The late Geo. F. Andrews built this place some 30 years ago and run it as a boarding house for some years. He made money here. It was later sold to Chas. C. Tibbetts of Fryeburg, who continued the business and here laid the foundation for the wealth he amassed in the hotel business in Waterville and Kennebunk.

Mr. Tibbets died a few years ago and his widow, who runs the Mousam House at Kennebunk owns this stand.

W. H. Ginn operated for some time and several French tenants have had it but for some years past it has been closed.

It is an excellent place for some one who wants to make money in a boarding house.

The lying sign should be taken in. Mrs. Tibbetts ought to repair—if repairs are needed—and rent or sell it. It's a good location and there is a good living and money in it for someone. Mrs. Tibbetts is making nothing out of it as it now is. Better do something or give somebody else a chance.

The Maine Central owns the Narrow Guage to Harrison. In the near future this diminutive rail road is to be changed to standard guage. When that is done the evident intention is to extend the road thro' Waterford. Wise ones say the extension will be to South Waterford, Waterford, East Waterford, Stoneham and North Lovell, and thus connecting and opening up the Big Kezar which is coming into prominence as a summer resort. The business about these lakes has increased wonderfully in the past decade. The plan of extension is possible and will no doubt be made profitable to the road. It will divert some business from the Grand Trunk and this would be pleasing to the New Haven end of the Maine Central as things have existed for the past two years. Maybe the war with the G. T. Ry. is over. It looks that way now.

The above proposed extension is pleasing to all the people along the line and especially so to Harrison and Bridgton folks.

Do we all return thanks as we ought to, each night we can blow out the light and go to bed and rest in peace,—no member of the family ill enough to need watchers, plenty of plain every day comforts around us and a good roof over our heads? Think it over, everybody. Have you a home of your own? Think of those who have none.

The method of building the sidewalks in the past is largely responsible for their present bad condition. The abuttor has built such walk as he saw fit and placed on such a grade as suited his convenience. No attention has been given to the foundation hence it settles, sags and heaves.

The new walks to go in next season should not be built that way. All the walks should be laid to the grade as established by the recent survey as shown by the blue print in the Assessors, office.

The present scarcity of coal and the high price of wood has led many to ask how it was that our fathers kept their families warm.

Why, bless you, our fathers did not heat every room in the house. There was a great fire-place in the living room and in this was burned wood four feet long, and sometimes longer than that.

A man was telling recently of having seen his father draw large logs, too big to be carried, into the kitchen, with his horse, and roll them into the fire place.

And these fireplaces, with the chimney connected therewith, were huge affairs, and contained enough brick to build a small modern house. When this mass of brick became thoroughly heated as it did from the great fireplace, it tempered the atmosphere of the whole house, taking the chill from all the rooms, and while not making them warm enough to sit in they were pretty warm for sleeping.

When the men or women went out of doors they put on a plentiful supply of real, home made clothing which defied the fiercest attacts of Jack Frost.

This clothing was made from wool taken from the backs of the farmer's sheep and while it kept the heat in the body it kept the cold out.

Heard in the barber shop:—

Gasoline will be 25 cents per gallon after the first of January,

"I don't care" says Peace "I'll go up on Fred Sanborn's board and Mr. Cordwell will apply for an increase of pension and we'll run the machine next season just the same."

Give the streets a rest.
The sidewalks a rest.
A desired rest to your readers.

Rest assured we'll rest with the rest of the people when something is done on streets and sewers.

A certain man—now dead—pocket peddled in Norway. Just think of it in this town! A trap was laid to catch him. The boot-leg peddler was put wise. A pint of supposed liquor was delivered to the spotter and for which he paid seventy-five cents. A tasting test of the liquid was made by the good judge and officer before issuing the warrant and it was decided the receptacle contained urine only.

Suit was not instituted to recover the seventy-five cents on the ground of selling goods under false pretenses.

There was no trial, no seizur warrant issued or talk made.

Privately we can tell you the names of all the parties but guess we won't put it in print.

This occurred before our present judge wore the ermine.

A man seldom generates steam with the money he burns.

Mrs. Lydia J. Bumpus.

Mrs. Lydia J. Bumpus died Thursday noon, Dec. 12, at her home on Lower street, Turner.

She was the daughter of Obiah and Gratia Day, being born, 72 years ago, at their home on River road, Turner. Here she spent her youth until, at the age of eighteen, she married Martin K. Starling in Oxford County.

To many interested in the study of birds it is interesting to note that a new bird in Oxford County has been found which is the Starling (Sturnus Vulgaris). This bird was found at Bryant Pond on the 10th of December and one is being mounted by J. Waldo Nash of Norway.

According to the history of this specie it is found that the European Starling has been introduced several times into Eastern North America but that only the last importation has been successful. In 1890 about sixty of these birds were released at Central Park, New York city, under the direction of Eugene Schieffelir. Many of them soon left the park and located in the upper part of New York city and until recently have been known only as far north as Massachusetts.

The Starling is a native of western central Europe and briefly described is as follows: length, 8½ inches; adult male, black with purple and green reflections, the feathers of the upper parts more or less tipped with pale buff, under tail-coverts edged with white, beak, yellow, feet, flesh-colored tinged with brown; female, spotted below as well as above; young, uniform ash brown, faintly streaked with darker.

This bird can easily be recognized by its general appearance and manner of flight. It is about the size of a red-winged blackbird but has a very short tail and in flight flutters like a meadow lark, but seldom sails like the lark. These birds are splendid for grass land destroying caterpillars, bettles, worms, insects, etc., but when they become too numerous the fruit districts suffer.

The starling can give no special service here that cannot be equally well performed by our own black birds, meadow larks, bobolinks, sparrows and other birds but are useful in districts where these birds are not numerous enough to keep the insects of the grass land in check.

The increase and spread of these birds is rapid and often two broods in a season are raised but it is probable that only about two-thirds of the brood is reared. The starlings have a wonderful physical fitness for the struggle of supremacy as it is a hardy, muscular and powerful line.

Maine Legislature Opens Jan 1.

This winter at the Maine Capital is likely to be one of the most eventful and interesting in the State's history. With the Legislature divided as it is politically and important legislation to be urged and demanded, it behooves all of us to follow developments closely.

This can best be done beyond the limits of the Capital City by careful reading of the old reliable and modern equipped Kennebec Journal, a Maine daily that is commanding attention and respect among the country's best newspapers.

This winter the Kennebec Journal will not only publish daily the entire stenographic reports of the Legislative proceedings, but will maintain a staff of trained newspaper men at the Capitol to cover committee hearings and to bring out in detail and in meaning every incident of importance.

With one of the strongest editorial and reportorial organizations ever brought together on a Maine newspaper, the Kennebec Journal is prepared to handle this winter's proceedings as has never been done before.

Advance notices of ALL the committee hearings are published in the Journal, a matter of the greatest importance to those who are watching new legislation.

The Journal also publishes at opening of session biographical sketches of members of the Legislature, accompanied by half tone portraits.

The price of Daily edition will be $1.25 for the session.

Address Kennebec Journal, Augusta.
